Class: 大學部

Course Description:
Students that wish to take this course are expected to have the basic ground in corporate finance, and have a basic understanding about the subject. The class is designed in the format of seminar discussion; therefore, it will not be successful without your participation.

Course Objectives:
This course is designed to help students understand the theoretical arguments and empirical findings in corporate finance, and to realize how theory explains the past and current financial events. The intended topics include the Markets, Corporate Strategy and structure, Capital Structure and Payout Policy, Raising Capital, Corporate Restructuring and Corporate Governance, and Real Options. Most of the articles to be discussed are mainly from: The New Corporate Finance: Where Theory Meets Practice, 3ed. (Text Book)

Instruction Materials:
The New Corporate Finance: Where Theory Meets Practice, 3ed

Course Requirements:
The course will be taught and discussed in English. Each week, two articles will be presented and discussed. All students are expected to read the articles thoroughly before coming to class. You also have to write summaries for the articles. The summary will be corrected by your colleague. The format of the summary will be explained in detail later. To keep up with the current business news in the world, you will be presenting the news from Asian Wall Street Journal and lead the discussion in each class. Since this course is intended to proceed in the pattern of discussion panel, silence is not allowed in the class. The reluctance to speak out could result in failure for this course

Grade: Presentation:35%  Participation:20%  Summary:15%  Reports:30%

Class Meeting Schedule:
Part I: Man and Markets
Part II: Corporate strategy and structure
Part III: Capital structure and payout policy
Part IV: Raising Capital
Part V: Corporate restructuring and corporate governance
Part VI: Real options

Class: 企管國企碩博班

Course Description:

1. To help you understand the issues in the fields of international corporate finance and investment.
2. To motivate you for early kick-out of thesis, so that the final version of your thesis could be potentially publishable.
3. To better equip you with the ability to give a formal presentation and discussion in English.

Course Objectives:

1. The purpose and design of this course center on the following objectives:
2. To help you understand the issues in the fields of international corporate finance and investment.
3. To motivate you for early kick-out of thesis, so that the final version of your thesis could be potentially publishable.
4. To better equip you with the ability to give a formal presentation and discussion in English.

Instruction Materials:

Course Requirements:

During this period, you should choose one paper in the assigned topic and prepare to lead a discussion of that paper. Starting from the fourth week, two students will lead the discussion of two papers in each class. For the remaining of this semester. To better prepare for the discussion, each one of you have to write a page of summary for at least one article following the suggested format.

Grade:
- Presentation: 35%
- Participation: 20%
- Summary: 15%
- Reports: 30%

Class Meeting Schedule:
At the beginning of this semester, each student will be assigned one topic (hopefully this is also the topic of your thesis). In the second and third weeks, Professor Chang and Chiang will lead the course individually.
